SPECIFIC COMMENTS:

Please describe what you like best about the school/school district you are reviewing:

There are a very few teachers that have passion for their special ed job. Our school has a great and positive culture towards all special needs kids. The other teachers and children are very kind to our kids.

Please describe what you like least about the school/school district you are reviewing:

There are special ed teachers and general ed teachers that are working with special needs children that don't appear to want to be in their occupation. They don't know how to communicate with the kids, have no understanding on how to teach and think outside of the box and make no effort to help the child stay on course with their grade level. In the recent year the 11% population of the special ed department is shouldering 61% of the systems cost cuts to save money. That is bad math.

What changes would you like to see made at the school/school district you are reviewing:

More open-mindedness towards special ed. We are going to have more children with Autism specifically as the years go by. We are not looking ahead as to how to manage that growth area. Our system is trying to consolidate children to save money. They need to streamline each school to be prepared to handle in influx instead of housing them together to save money. Life outside of school is not like that. There will be 10's of thousands of these kids upon us and they will not know what to do to handle it.

What specific problems, if any, have you encountered with this school/school district:

Too many ups and downs and changes that happen yearly. The kids and parents can have no expectation of how the next year will go and even what school their child will be in.

Is there anything else you would like other parents to know about this school/school district:

We are in to big of a state of change to come to Huntsville. The new administration has no understanding of special needs children and how to educate them without overspending so they are grossly underspend and cut jobs. We have very unhappy teachers all over the city in special ed and gen ed.
